IV. New Business

A. Discussion/Review of updates to hazardous materials emergency response plans and notifications of no changes to the plans submitted by the LEPC's

Ms. Kennard requested the Committee to look at the levels of response and levels of training for each LEPC when reviewing the plans to determine if the information staff has for each LEPC is correct. Ms. Kennard stated the levels have not been looked at and verified in a few years. There was discussion on requesting the number trained in each level to determine if the LEPCs are correct in their levels of response and level of training. It was stated each of the LEPCs might have a different definition of what a technician level or an operations level is, so it could be difficult to determine if a LEPC is at a technician level opposed to an operations level. It was also stated to have the LEPCs document their levels of response and training in their hazmat plan for certification. The Committee requested to have staff draft a request to the LEPCs to define their definition of technician level in their county and what level of response and training their county is currently at. The Committee requested to have the draft as an action item on the next agenda for them to review and take action on.
